After almost a decade in practice, Dr. Lily Talakoub is one of the most respected voices in the dermatology and beauty industries. Her integrity in both skincare and aesthetics is evident as you walk through her expansive 5000sq ft. McLean office where she is the chief dermatologist.

Dr. Talakoub leads her peers as the national trainer for Allergan and is omnipresent in the DC philanthropic scene where she serves on the Children's Hospital Board of Visitors. As a mom of three, her energy is limitless; Dr. Talakoub also just launched her third business this year which is a dermatologist-meets-drugstore ecommerce site called dermtodoor.

She is on the dermatology panel at Condé Nast and she is a media expert for various publications such as Vogue, InStyle, Health, Self, Parenting and more. She is committed to supporting young women in business and remembers advice a mentor once shared with her: "If you rise to the top, send the elevator back down." It is my duty to do that for others," she says
